Introduction to the Educational Resource Guide

All students seeking educational advancement need assistance in the form of information, resources, financing and support. Individuals coming from underserved communities most often face of adversity in the educational system and need additional assistance and guidance. This resource guide can assist minority students and families as they seek educational advancement from returning to get a High School Diploma to finding scholarships, grants, and higher education institutions in South Carolina.

Nearly 1/3 of South Carolina's population is ethnic minorities, with many living in underserved and rural communities. The South Carolina Commission for Minority Affairs (CMA) is the official state government agency responsible for working with the many diverse communities of color represented in South Carolina. African Americans are the largest minority group in the State, followed by Hispanic/Latino persons, Asians and the indigenous or Native American/Alaskan Native people. Additionally, many other ethnic groups have made South Carolina home, changing the population landscape of our State.

According to the research:

- South Carolina's Native American Indian population is approximately 42,000 and located across our State—making up <1% of the total population.
- There are 3,832 American Indians under the age of 18 in South Carolina.
- Of American Indian students, 60% graduate on time.
- Young adult American Indians—ages 19-26 years of age—are 77% employed or attending school.
- There are nine State Recognized Tribes, four State Recognized Groups, two Special Interest Organizations and one Federally Recognized Tribe—Catawba Indian Nation—in South Carolina.

SC Commission for Minority Affairs

The SC Commission for Minority Affairs is the official state agency of South Carolina serving the diverse communities of color. The South Carolina Commission for Minority Affairs was created in 1993 by the General Assembly to provide the citizens of the State with a single point of contact for information regarding the State's minority population.

In 2001, the Native American Affairs Ad Hoc Committee was created and housed at the Commission with the goal of establishing an Indian Affairs Commission for the State of South Carolina through collaboration with the Commission. Through the hard work and dedication of the Ad Hoc Committee, the Commission's statute was changed adding the Native American Affairs Initiative under the duties of the Commission.

Since 2003, the Commission has been committed to strengthening the relationship between South Carolina's Native American Indian communities and government. The Commission carries out its duties under Chapter 31, Title 1 of the SC Code of Laws of 1976, Section 1-31-40(A)(6)(10) and Chapter 139, Article 1 of the Code of Regulations which include but are not limited to the following:

- influencing public policy and state services;
- maintaining an advisory committee;
- development and implementation of statistical data;
- addressing the needs of the population; and
- State Recognition of Native American entities.

The Native American Affairs Initiative, established in 2003 at the SC Commission for Minority Affairs, exists to serve as a liaison to federal, state, and local government units as well as private organizations on behalf of Native American persons in this state. The Commission serves as a single point of contact for Native American Indian Affairs and State Recognition for South Carolina. Our purpose is to be a catalyst that brings social equity and economic prosperity through policy change, education and increased awareness. Our vision is that all Native American citizens of South Carolina and their communities will be treated equitably and see economic prosperity through recognition, policy changes, collaboration, educational initiatives, and increased public awareness of the significant contributions that Native Americans have made to South Carolina's rich cultural heritage.

The Native American Affairs Initiative utilizes the expertise of community and tribal leaderships through our Native American Advisory Committee. This committee has members from the State Recognized tribal and group leadership, the Catawba Indian Nation, State Archaeologist, the Commission and other important contributors. Through this committee and the work of the Jobs, Training and Education workgroup, the concept of the "SC Native American Indian Educational Resource Guide" has come to life. The Committee, Workgroup and Staff hope this guide will be a useful tool to aid students and their families as they seek information and resources for educational opportunities.

GOOD NEWS!!! GOOD NEWS!!! GOOD NEWS!!!

There are many financial aid opportunities for minority students returning to school or enrolling in higher education for the first time. Grants, scholarships, internships, fellowships, and other programs can assist you with the costs of advancing your education at any level. Grants differ from scholarships generally for their tendency to award funds based on financial need, versus scholarships, which tend toward merit or a hybrid of the two. Many grant programs address the challenges that face underrepresented populations. Internships and fellowships can be paid or not and can range from high school to university level. Additionally, there other types of local, state, federal, private financial assistance or loans.

While researching information for this guide, staff looked specifically for assistance for ethnic minority students and Native American Indians. The Commission was advised by tribal leaders on the most important information to be included in this guide. Additionally, the Commission staff and interns worked with other agencies, organizations, tribal entities and individuals to develop this guide.

It is advised that families and students research available educational funding and programs on their own using this guide as a resource. Leading sources for funds remain government sources. Information included in this guide may change over time, so it is important to seek out the latest and most up to date information as you continue to advance your education.

Higher Education Financial Aid

Best Sources for Minority Grants

Federal and state government grant funds are most proactive in providing need-based aid to minority and low-income students.

Popular federal grants include:

- Pell Grant
- Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant (FSEOG)
- Academic Competitiveness Grant (AC)
- National SMART Grant

These are not earmarked for minorities you say? These federal grant programs remain essential tools for minority students: statistics continue to show that the majority of the grant monies go to fund the educations of minority—and disabled—students. If you are a minority student, from a low-income household, you must consider the Pell Grant one of your greatest opportunities.

If you don't apply or qualify for a Pell Grant then you are automatically shut out of the FSEOG, the AC Grant, and the SMART grant—they all require students to be Pell recipients.

Next Best Sources for Minority Grants

Besides the wealth of the government, there are a few other very useful resources for grant money:

- Put minority foundations on your grant program checklist. Well-known organizations such as the United Negro College Fund, the Hispanic College Fund, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs, or the American Indian College Fund, all maintain grant and scholarship programs for ethnic minority students.
- Learn how to identify grant programs that may be right for you from Corporate America. Competitive, but lucrative, grant programs are often launched by corporations. Many stand committed to corporate diversity and spend millions of dollars supporting students, —just like you—ethnic and non-ethnic minorities.

Higher Education Financial Aid

The FAFSA is Key

The cornerstone to ANY grant or scholarship search is the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). You MUST complete the application and submit it to be considered for most government, public, and university programs. Put off the FAFSA and you risk missing the deadline and severing your chances of earning thousands of dollars of funds. There is also a Spanish language version of FAFSA.

What are the FAFSA deadlines?

The federal FAFSA deadline is June 30 every year. State deadlines vary and can be earlier than June 30. According the FAFSA.ed.gov website, South Carolina's deadline is June 30, but the qualifying students until they are depilated. Students also need to check requirements of individual colleges and universities as their deadlines my also vary.

SC Commission on Higher Education encourages applications to be submitted as soon as possible after January 1 to receive state funds.

Bookmark the FAFSA site, download the form, fill it out completely, and submit it. The US Department of Education publishes a step-by-step guide to completing the FAFSA—in Spanish and English—or you can ask your high school guidance or college financial aid counselor for assistance. Additionally, visit the South Carolina Commission for Higher Education's website for more resources and the SC CAN website for applications and resources for South Carolina public institutions.

Organize your scholarship search in the following ways:

1. Deadline:

Use deadlines and due dates as a way to first organize your scholarships. Work on these that have the closest due dates first.

2. Requirements:

After organizing by the due date, use the requirements to help you organize. Scholarships with the most requirements, essays and other items will need the most time to complete.

3. Types:

Organizing by type can also be helpful when you are searching. Some scholarships help only with tuition, while others may help with books, lodging and other costs. Some even offer weekly stipends.

These tips will help you save time, focus and get more applications completed.

High School Equivalency Diploma and Adult Education Resources

Congratulations on moving forward towards your education goals! Passing the SC Test Assessing Secondary Completion (TASC) Test or the General Education Development (GED) test are very important steps in your life.

GED Facts

Since 1942, the Tests of General Educational Development (GED) has offered adults an alternative path to earn a high school diploma. More than 18 million people have passed the GED test. The GED test continues to offer adults a second chance at a high school credential, but it doesn't stop there. The new computer-based GED test offers an enhanced score report and opportunities for adults to show their readiness for careers and college. Many adults who did not complete a high school program of instruction have continued to learn through a variety of experiences encountered in everyday life. The purpose of the GED Testing Program is to provide an opportunity for these individuals to have the learning acquired from such educational experiences evaluated and recognized. The GED Tests make it possible for qualified individuals to earn a high school credential, thus providing opportunities for hundreds of thousands of adults to:

- Pursue higher education
- Obtain jobs or job promotions
- Achieve personal goals
- Enlist in military service

TASC Facts

The TASC is different from the (GED) test. The TASC allows you to earn your High School Equivalency Diploma. In some states, the TASC has replaced the GED. The TASC is a national high school equivalency assessment to help individual address their need for advancement, resulting in a High School Equivalency Diploma.

If you are 19 years of age you can register, schedule and pay for your TASC tests online using this website.

If you are 17 or 18 years of age, you can initiate registration online using this website. In order to complete the registration process you must take a completed South Carolina Verification of Withdrawal form to your local test center. The test center will approve your form, and confirm your registration so that exams can be scheduled.

High School Equivalency Diploma and Adult Education Resources

If you are 16 years old you can initiate registration online using this website. In order to complete the registration process, you must provide a completed South Carolina Verification of Withdrawal form and proof of being under the jurisdiction of the Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ), or have a court order to take the High School Equivalency test. These documents must be sent to the State High School Equivalency Office in Columbia prior to scheduling a TASC test. For further assistance please contact Colleen Clark at 803-734-8347.

If you need a special testing accommodation, you must submit an application and receive a TASC test approval letter before scheduling exams. Contact the TASC Test Help Desk to access any necessary forms and information.

Please allow up to two weeks for your High School Equivalency Diploma to be mailed to you after passing the TASC test. If there are changes that need to be made to your diploma, because of a typographical error or a legitimate name change, please contact the South Carolina Department of Education at 803-734-8347.

Costs and Fees

Each test will have their own costs and fees associated with taking the test. It is important to contact your test taking center and/or the SC Department of Education for the most update to date prices.
